THE COUNCIL,

HAVING REGARD to Article 5 b) of the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development of 14 December 1960;

HAVING REGARD to the Report of the Trade Committee of 12 June 1962 to the Council on Administrative and Technical Regulations which Hamper the Expansion of Trade [C(62)108];

HAVING REGARD to paragraph 16 of the Report of the Preparatory Committee;

CONSIDERING that in addition to quantitative restrictions, customs duties, export aids and State trading in imports, there exist in Member countries administrative and technical regulations imposed by the authorities or by private or trading bodies recognised by the authorities and that in certain cases such regulations constitute an unnecessary obstacle to trade;

I. RECOMMENDS that Member Governments keep under review their administrative and technical regulations in order to eliminate those provisions which are not essential for the purpose of the regulation and which hamper trade.

II. DECIDES:

1. Any Member Government which considers that an administrative or technical regulation enforced in another Member country hampers its exports to that country, or has the effect of directly or indirectly discriminating against its trade, may refer the case to the Organisation. As a general rule cases should be referred only when direct negotiations between the Governments concerned have proved unsuccessful.

2. The Trade Committee shall, where appropriate, with the co-operation of other Committees of the Organisation, examine any case referred to the Organisation under paragraph 1 and shall make a report to the Council, if necessary. Where such a case concerns products coming within the terms of reference of the Committee for Agriculture, or the Fisheries Committee, these Committees and the Trade Committee shall jointly examine the case and shall report to the Council, if necessary.

About the OECD

The OECD is a unique forum where governments work together to address the economic, social and environmental challenges of globalisation. The OECD is also at the forefront of efforts to understand and to help governments respond to new developments and concerns, such as corporate governance, the information economy and the challenges of an ageing population. The Organisation provides a setting where governments can compare policy experiences, seek answers to common problems, identify good practice and work to co-ordinate domestic and international policies.

The OECD Member countries are: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, the Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Latvia, Luxembourg, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, the Slovak Republic, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States. The European Union takes part in the work of the OECD.

OECD Legal Instruments

Since the creation of the OECD in 1961, around 450 substantive legal instruments have been developed within its framework. These include OECD Acts (i.e. the Decisions and Recommendations adopted by the OECD Council in accordance with the OECD Convention) and other legal instruments developed within the OECD framework (e.g. Declarations, international agreements).

All substantive OECD legal instruments, whether in force or abrogated, are listed in the online Compendium of OECD Legal Instruments. They are presented in five categories:

- Decisions: OECD legal instruments which are legally binding on all Members except those which abstain at the time of adoption. While they are not international treaties, they entail the same kind of legal obligations. Adherents are obliged to implement Decisions and must take the measures necessary for such implementation.
- Recommendations: OECD legal instruments which are not legally binding but practice accords them great moral force as representing the political will of Adherents. There is an expectation that Adherents will do their utmost to fully implement a Recommendation. Thus, Members which do not intend to do so usually abstain when a Recommendation is adopted, although this is not required in legal terms.
- Declarations: OECD legal instruments which are prepared within the Organisation, generally within a subsidiary body. They usually set general principles or long-term goals, have a solemn character and are usually adopted at Ministerial meetings of the Council or of committees of the Organisation.
- International Agreements: OECD legal instruments negotiated and concluded within the framework of the Organisation. They are legally binding on the Parties.
- Arrangement, Understanding and Others: several ad hoc substantive legal instruments have been developed within the OECD framework over time, such as the Arrangement on Officially Supported Export Credits, the International Understanding on Maritime Transport Principles and the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) Recommendations.
