THE COUNCIL,

HAVING REGARD to Article 5 b) of the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development of 14 December 1960;

HAVING REGARD to the Report by the Committee on Financial Markets of 11 February 1972 on the Standard Rules for the Operations of Institutions for Collective Investment in Securities [C(71)234 and Corrigena 1 (French text only), 2 and 3 and Addendum 1];

CONSIDERING that the general observance of the principles reflected and of the minimum requirements provided in the Standard Rules for the Operations of Institutions for Collective Investment in Securities set forth in the Report referred to above (hereinafter called the "Standard Rules") would improve the protection of investors, facilitate the balanced evolution of the activities of this sector and thus contribute to the improvement of capital markets both nationally and internationally.

On the proposal of the Committee on Financial Markets;

I. RECOMMENDS that Member countries:

1. Review, as appropriate, their existing legislation or regulations concerning the operations of institutions for collective investment in securities, taking into consideration the Standard Rules and to take the Standard Rules into account when preparing new legislation or regulations on this subject;
2. When considering applications for the admission to public sale in their own territory of the securities of foreign institutions for collective investment in securities which comply with the Standard Rules, give substantial weight, within the framework of their legislation, to the fact of such compliance.

II. INSTRUCTS the Committee on Financial Markets to review the implementation of this Recommendation and report thereon to the Council by the end of 1973.

About the OECD

The OECD is a unique forum where governments work together to address the economic, social and environmental challenges of globalisation. The OECD is also at the forefront of efforts to understand and to help governments respond to new developments and concerns, such as corporate governance, the information economy and the challenges of an ageing population. The Organisation provides a setting where governments can compare policy experiences, seek answers to common problems, identify good practice and work to co-ordinate domestic and international policies.

The OECD Member countries are: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, the Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Latvia, Luxembourg, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, the Slovak Republic, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States. The European Union takes part in the work of the OECD.

OECD Legal Instruments

Since the creation of the OECD in 1961, around 450 substantive legal instruments have been developed within its framework. These include OECD Acts (i.e. the Decisions and Recommendations adopted by the OECD Council in accordance with the OECD Convention) and other legal instruments developed within the OECD framework (e.g. Declarations, international agreements).

All substantive OECD legal instruments, whether in force or abrogated, are listed in the online Compendium of OECD Legal Instruments. They are presented in five categories:

- Decisions: OECD legal instruments which are legally binding on all Members except those which abstain at the time of adoption. While they are not international treaties, they entail the same kind of legal obligations. Adherents are obliged to implement Decisions and must take the measures necessary for such implementation.
- Recommendations: OECD legal instruments which are not legally binding but practice accords them great moral force as representing the political will of Adherents. There is an expectation that Adherents will do their utmost to fully implement a Recommendation. Thus, Members which do not intend to do so usually abstain when a Recommendation is adopted, although this is not required in legal terms.
- Declarations: OECD legal instruments which are prepared within the Organisation, generally within a subsidiary body. They usually set general principles or long-term goals, have a solemn character and are usually adopted at Ministerial meetings of the Council or of committees of the Organisation.
- International Agreements: OECD legal instruments negotiated and concluded within the framework of the Organisation. They are legally binding on the Parties.
- Arrangement, Understanding and Others: several ad hoc substantive legal instruments have been developed within the OECD framework over time, such as the Arrangement on Officially Supported Export Credits, the International Understanding on Maritime Transport Principles and the Development Assistance Committee (DAC) Recommendations.
